Judge revokes probation, Schwall gets four years

By BRENT MACEY
Michael Schwall, 31, of Bay St. Louis is sentenced to four years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary after being found guilty of a probation violation by Senior Circuit Court Judge Willie B. Grant Friday in the Hancock County Courthouse.

News Briefs

LAKE CREEK MEETING
The newly organized Northeast Hancock Volunteer Fire Department met at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Lake Creek voting precinct in the New Community Center. Group member B. M. Meneaux says the business meeting will discuss efforts underway to gain a charter for the department. The general public is invited to join the organization and offer suggestions.

GLAUCOMA SCREENING
The Hancock County Health Department will conduct a glaucoma screening clinic from 8:30 to 10 a.m. Friday, May 15 at the department office, Dunbar Avenue, Bay St. Louis. The painless test consists of placing drops in the eyes and reading fluid pressure within the eyeball with a device which fits over the eye like a mask, a clinic spokesman said. A preliminary symptom is vision of halos, she pointed out. Persons over 40 are urged to be tested for the malady which, undetected and untreated, may cause blindness. See editorial page.

was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

At the time of that hearing, Schwall was still on probation from previous convictions in October of 1975.

During that hearing Schwall testified to giving barbiturates to three Hancock County minors.

Two became sick from the drugs and the third was treated for an overdose at Hancock General Hospital.

Schwall, in Hancock County Circuit Court in October of 1975, originally pled guilty to charges of three counts of grand larceny, two counts of assault and battery with intent to kill, one count of burglary and larceny, one count of burglary and one count of attempted burglary.

All charges were related to Schwall's activities in Hancock County earlier in that year, Jerry Heitzmann, district supervisor for the Mississippi State Department of Corrections said Friday. Heitzmann said the assault and battery charges stemmed from a beating which Schwall allegedly gave to two elderly women in 1975.

At that time Schwall was sentenced to four years in the state penitentiary with a two year suspended sentence. He was also given three years probation.

After serving slightly over one year of combined time in the State Mental Hospital in Whitfield, the state penitentiary and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Schwall was released on three years probation.

In July of 1979, several months before his three year parole period was over, Schwall was arrested again, this time for possession of narcotics in Jefferson Parish.

Heitzmann stated Schwall was also charged with leaving the state without permission while being on probation.

Following his arrest in Louisiana, Schwall was returned to Mississippi and given a probation revocation hearing in Hancock County Circuit Court.

Heitzmann said that court ordered Schwall to the state mental hospital for treatment and extended his probation an additional five years.

This action brought Schwall's total probationary period to eight years for the two separate offenses.

Heitzmann said Louisiana authorities never prosecuted Schwall for drug possession because they knew he was wanted for revocation prosecution (leaving Hancock County while on probation).

"Schwall's latest conviction in 1981 for contributing to the delinquency of minors lead Grant to revoke the eight year probation period and reinstate the original four year prison term of 1975, of which two years had originally been suspended," Heitzmann said.

He added, a judge can revoke a probationary period and reinstate a prison sentence, which originally may have been suspended, whenever a probationer is found guilty of violating parole.

Grant added a special condition to the sentence to include having Schwall brought immediately to the state penitentiary and given psychological evaluation and treatment.

Also during Friday's session of circuit court, Joseph Kyle D'Angelo pled guilty to 12 counts of burglary of an automobile and received a ten year suspended sentence in the state penitentiary and five years probation under authority of the state department of corrections.

Louisiana man jailed in gas theft attempt

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A Mandeville, La. man is in Hancock County Jail charged with petit larceny and possession of marijuana.

Michael L. Hennessey, 22, was apprehended by Bay St. Louis Police Patrolmen Russell Watts and Richard Trudell at Leo Moran's Premier gasoline station on US-90 for allegedly attempting to steal gasoline.

Police Chief Douglas Williams Saturday reported just under one ounce of marijuana was found during the arrest.

"Hennessey was allegedly in the process of stealing gasoline from the station's underground tanks by using an electric pump hooked to his automobile tank when the officers apprehended him," Williams explained.

"He was fined $1,000 in Bay City Court Wednesday night and is now in jail," Williams added.

Sheriff notes quiet weekend

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson reported everything as being quiet Saturday afternoon with just routine arrests.

"We locked up several people for driving under the influence and suspect more arrests for drunk driving over the long holiday weekend," Peterson said.

A regular staff of deputies along with several auxiliary deputies are working this weekend. There seems to be heavy traffic on Beach Boulevard as well as the highways of in the county weekend," Peterson stated.

Hancock jobless rate increasing

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County's unemployment rate increased in February.

The 7.1 percent rate is a one-half percentage point rise from the previous month, based on recently released

Mississippi Employment Security Commission figures.

However, the local rate is below the state's 8.8 percent figure and the national eight percent rate.

The commission reports 510 people were unemployed in the county out of a civilian labor force of 7,160.

In the previous month the commission states 470 were unemployed out of a 7,070 labor force.

O.H. Simmons of Jackson, commission executive director, notes the state unemployment rate reflected a one-tenth percent increase from January's report.

"Last year's February unemployment rate was 6.9 percent," Simmons says.

Statewide commission figures show 88,600 unemployed out of a civilian labor force of 1,010,000.

Simmons reports, "Initial unemployment insurance claims totalled 16,911 for February."

"Counties with the highest unemployment rates in February were Jefferson, with a 17.4 percent rate; JOBLESS—Page 2A

Chamber begins clean up effort

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce recently began a campaign to inspire county citizens to clean up debris along county roads and put a stop to people littering.

The effort coincides with Keep America Beautiful Week scheduled April 25 through May 3; however, Warren Carver, chairman of the chamber's beautification committee, said the campaign will extend year round and will not end with the closing of the special week.

Carver and members of the committee scheduled a meeting at the chamber's office on US-90 recently and invited all county officials, including the mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, councilmen and aldermen of each city, both city police departments, school superintendents, the director of the county civil defense and the sheriff's department Chief Ronald Peterson.

Peterson was the only official who attended the meeting.

Carver said efforts will be continued to contact the other 19 officials and inform them of the campaign which he stated needed their support.

Carver said three main objectives of the campaign are:

—Educating the community to take responsibility for keeping the county clean;

—Building a spirit of pride in the community;

—Convincing citizens that a clean community can be a good investment of time and energy.

"The community can be kept clean and attractive if citizens simply will it to be so," Carver said.

"I am experienced in bookkeeping, having worked with various business concerns as bookkeeper.

"I served in the legislature as representative of Hancock County from 1960 to 1964. While serving as representative, I was particularly interested in effecting laws that would bring industry to our city, county, and state.

"As an example of this, I authored the bill establishing Port and Harbor Commission of the county and supported legislation which would have given the municipalities a fair share of the gasoline tax, especially that which would be burned in the city streets for the maintenance of its streets.

"This effort I continued to advance through a term as director of petroleum tax in the Mississippi Motor Vehicle Commission and in the State Tax Division.

"After serving in the legislature, I was employed by NASA contractors as foreman of roads, grounds, waterways, maintenance, and construction.

"In 1973 I was elected Bay St. Louis commissioner of finance. While serving in that office, I took many courses offered by Mississippi State University on municipal government. I am qualified in property assessment, real and personal, writing ordinances, and disbursement of tax collections to insure that proportionate amounts of each tax dollar are put to maximum use by each department of the city.

"I was mindful of the need of our citizens for more employment opportunities. As a result of this concern, we reactivated a then - dormant industry with a new look and purpose now known as Alcan Aluminum Corporation.

"I worked continuously for the realization of a public harbor, which I believed then and believe now would be an asset to Bay St. Louis in that it would create employment.

"I was named by the governor as director of Petroleum Tax Division of the Motor Vehicle commissioner's office.

"In 1980 the MVC office was merged with the Tax Commission. I retained my position as Petroleum Tax Collector until I retired on December 31, 1980.

"I offer the above experiences and qualifications for your consideration because I believe, as I am sure that many of you believe, that these qualifications will be very essential in helping to formulate plans and policies for the advancement of our city and its citizens."

Chamber plans election public forum

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a public forum Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Hancock County Courtroom located in the Courthouse on Main Street, Bay St. Louis.

"The purpose of this meeting is to allow the people of Bay St. Louis an opportunity to hear all the candidates seeking the positions of mayor, councilman-at-large, and councilmen in Wards 1, 2, 3, and 4," said Dick Kosbab, chamber president.

The first primary will be May 12. All questions from the audience must be in written form, and may be presented at the door or to the moderator. To avoid duplication, a committee consisting of three representatives of the chamber will screen all questions submitted.

Each candidate will be given a certain amount of time to answer every question.

As many questions will be answered as time permits.

"The Chamber is non-partisan, unbiased and only wants the candidates to have the opportunity to present their views and the voters to have the opportunity to ask questions—this is not a debate," Kosbab said.

In addition, D'Angelo will be transferred to the Jackson County Reformation Center to receive training for a high school equivalence degree while also working to pay a $2,335 restitution fee to the L&N railroad.

Heitzmann said most people who are sentenced to the Center stay from four to six months before being placed on regular probation.

Grant told the youth if he plead guilty, he automatically waived his rights to a trial by jury and any appeal motions.

The youth, represented by Attorney J.P. Compretta, said he understood. Charges stemmed from an incident last year in which D'Angelo and a juvenile hopped a freight train from Gulfport to New Orleans, during which time they allegedly broke into 12 new automobiles being transported by train and stole the keys.

When Grant asked the youth if he had intended to use the keys at a later date to steal the automobiles, D'Angelo said "no."

The two were arrested by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department in the Bayou Phillips area the night of the incident while hitchhiking on US-90, on their way back to Gulfport.

At that time, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the two were mistaken as burglars of a residence in the Bayou Phillips area when law enforcement officials investigating a burglary in that area spotted the two youths.

discussed laws and preventative measures to stop littering in the county.

Peterson said there are state laws against littering and stated his department has arrested people for littering in the past.

"Usually a police officer has seen the person actually throwing trash out of their car," the sheriff said.

He stated a second party sometimes fills out an affidavit against the litterer and appears in court to testify against that person.

Friday, District One Justice Court Judge Lee Klein said the penalty for littering can range from $50 to $500.

He said four different laws can be considered including federal and state laws along with county and city ordinances.

"It is also up to the discretion of the judge when considering the type of litter involved," he said.

During the meeting, Carver asked Peterson how the sheriff's department reacts to people who report litterers.

Peterson said, "We are very much in favor of following through on a complaint."

The sheriff said an individual who witnesses someone littering should take the license number of the vehicle involved and report that number to the police or sheriff's department.

"The problem is most people do not want to get involved. The average person does not want to have to go to court to prosecute."

Peterson stated his department on occasion has "picked through" large amounts of trash discovered along roadways in order to find an address or name included in the debris.

"On occasions when we find an address we usually tell the people to go back and pick the trash up or we will prosecute," the sheriff said.

Delbert Seay, investigator for the sheriff's department, said Friday the department followed that procedure in Lakeshore when a family was found dumping trash in an area along a mile stretch of road.

"They had to clean a mile along both sides the road with rakes," he said.

Peterson said his department also contributes to keeping Hancock County clean by having county prisoners clean areas where trash has been disposed.

"We just had four of five prisoners down at Buccaneer Park cleaning up that area," the sheriff said.

He said he will send some prisoners to clean up the service road off US-90 just west of the Bay St. Louis US-90 bridge.

Carver had complained that the area was an "eye sore" and stated, "I wonder what people passing on the highway think of this community when they see that mess."

street repairs

Bay St. Louis can have good streets if we start a regular drainage maintenance program and follow through with standard, proven street repair practices. Just throwing shells or asphalt in a pothole isn't good enough. It wastes time and money, and it doesn't work.

Last year we spent almost twice what we spent in 1977 to maintain streets and drainage. We should get more for our money. With a new mayor we can.

VA Questions And Answers

Q. I remain under the old pension law (formerly referred to as new law pension or Public Law 96-211) and understand that the VA pension amount received became a protected or fixed rate as of Dec. 31, 1978. If this is so, why is it necessary to report my income for 1980 on the Annual Income Questionnaire?

A. It is true that the amount of pension payable under the old law (Section 306, Pensions) is based on the rate tables in effect on Dec. 31, 1978. However, annual income reporting is required of those receiving Section 306 pension to verify that income and net worth remain within the allowable limitations.

Q. How may a veteran or eligible person overcome the presumption that his enrollment in a course determined to be avocational or recreational in nature is a bar to receiving benefits?

A. He may establish that the course will be of bonafide use in the pursuit of his present or contemplated business or occupation.

Q. I am the child of a deceased Survivor's Benefit Program participant. I am also eligible for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation. Will my SBP be offset by DIC?

A. DIC payments received by a child do not cause a reduction (offset) in SBP payments. Nor is the SBP payment offset by entitlement to VA educational assistance.

Q. I will be released from active duty in the very near future, after 20 years of service, and plan to attend high school. Will the VA pay for my schooling?

A. Public Law 96-466, recently signed into law, eliminates the payment of educational benefits for high school attendance except for tuition and fees.

Q. When will I get my dividend for my World War II insurance and how much will it be?

A. The 1981 dividends will be paid on the anniversary date of the policy. The average dividend on World War II policies is $168. For World War I policies the average is $296, and for Korean Conflict policies, the average dividend is $67.

Q. If a pension recipient is not sent an annual income questionnaire, is there any responsibility to report income to the VA?

A. The fact that one is not sent an income questionnaire does not mean he is exempt from the income limits prescribed by law. These persons must still report changes in the number or status of dependents and any increase in annual income to the VA office that has the individual's records. General rate increases in social security need not be reported.

Bicycle can't win
against motor vehicle

Bicycles—they're all around you, undersized and often overlooked by motorists.

There are close to 100 million bicycles in use today, and there are more to come. Every year more than 1,000 cyclists die as a result of car-bike accidents, and another 40,000 are injured.

With the bicycle season ready to start all across the United States, the National Safety Council has these safety tips for drivers and bikers to help kick off Bike Safety Week, April 20-26:

DRIVERS:

—Always assume cyclists might violate your right of way and be prepared;

—If you see a biker, think "car" and give the biker plenty of space;

—Even though it's illegal, cyclists may drive against traffic. Stay alert.

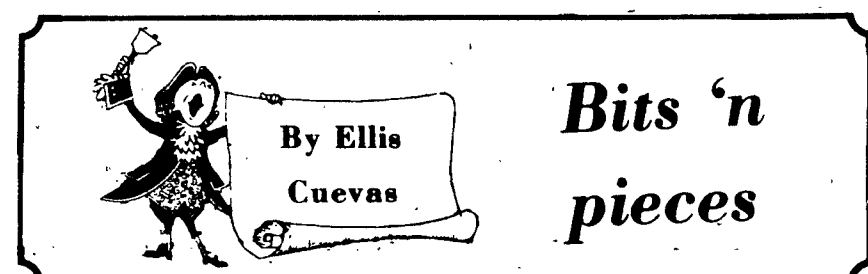

BIKERS:

—Keep right, drive with traffic, not against traffic;

—Use hand signals to indicate turning or stopping;

The Safety Council suggests motorists who drove a bike as a young person, but haven't since they acquired a four wheel vehicle, try biking again.

Motorists should get on a bike and mix with motor vehicle traffic, just to get the "feel" of the vulnerability that cyclists face.

We are happy to see approval by Farmers Home Loan Association (FmHA) of monies for water line extensions by the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District.

The FmHA loan and grant will add 11.5 miles of waterlines serving 81 homes in the Rocky Hill-Fire Tower Road area of the county.

We hope the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District will continue to grow as the Kiln area approaches the status it enjoyed around the turn of the century.

Many hours of hard work have been put in by some dedicated residents of The Kiln in creation of the district.

As we have mentioned before, we congratulate all the many hard workers.

All citizens of Bay St. Louis are urged to attend the political forum Wednesday at the Hancock County Courthouse.

This forum sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will give the voters an opportunity to ask candidates questions on their plans if elected to office.

Election Day is less than one month away, so we hope many of you will try to attend this important forum.

All of our lives we have heard that dogs are "man's best friend."

The recent poisoning of a Waveland couple's dog makes us wonder what type of a world we are now living in today.

How someone can feed poison to a dog mixed in with soup is beyond our imagination.

We hope the culprit will be caught and given a stiff sentence and a term in jail.

A good sentence would be cleaning daily the dog shelter for a six month period with a guard making sure the job is done correctly.

Today many youngsters will receive rabbits and baby chicks as Easter presents.

We hope the persons giving such gifts will also give proper instructions for the care of these animals.

Far too many of these gifts end up being neglected because the receivers of them are not properly instructed in their care.

We have had animals as long as we can remember, but we were taught how to care for them.

We hope all our youth will enjoy their Easter gifts.

Today we celebrate Easter, the resurrection of our Savior. May the spirit of Easter be with each of you for the coming year.

We hope everyone will attend a church of choice today in honor of the resurrection of Christ.

Happy Easter to everyone!

KEEP AMERICA BEAUTIFUL—Members of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce recently scheduled a meeting at the chamber's office on US-90 to start a campaign to clean up road side trash and stop people from littering in Hancock County. Although the effort coincides with Keep America Beautiful Week starting April 25, Warren Carver, head of the chamber's beautification committee, said the program will continue year round. Efforts are being made to contact community leaders including mayors, aldermen, councilmen, supervisors and police chiefs in the county to receive support for the program. "I am convinced the community can be kept clean and attractive if the people will it to be so," Carver said. Attending the meeting are, from left clockwise: Betsy Ashman, chamber member; Dick Kosbab, chamber president; Jerry Benigno, chamber secretary; Carver; Ronald Peterson, Hancock County Sheriff; and Jim Odom, announcer for WXGR in Bay St. Louis. State Board of Health reviews dumping laws

Mississippians depend on bottles, cans, newspapers, deodorant containers, insect spray cans, gasoline rags, and packaging materials for maintaining modern-day lifestyles.

But when the product inside has been used or the item has finished its life-cycle, it's just garbage. What happens to it then?

Almost a decade ago, the State Legislature and Mississippi State Board of Health established a statewide program to manage the state's garbage, known officially as "solid waste." The objective was to rid the state of unsightly, unsafe, unsanitary open dumps.

Consumers have learned that if they are to enjoy the benefits of industrial productivity, they must share the problems of disposal.

Wastes deposited in open dumps provide a natural breeding ground for rats and insects, and rain runoff can transport chemicals and other toxic products into streams, springs or rivers to kill fish and wildlife.

The Mississippi Solid Waste Disposal Law of 1974 directs the State Board of Health to protect public health and the environment through the proper regulation of the collection, transportation, processing, recovery, handling, storage, and disposal of solid waste.

Solid waste management regulations specify that any collection of solid wastes which is not under the supervision of any person or agency is an unauthorized dump.

Unauthorized dumps do not meet the regulatory provisions of the Solid Waste Disposal Law of 1974.

In Mississippi, sanitary landfills have proven to be the most economically feasible plan for environmentally safe and sanitary disposal of solid wastes. Regulations require minimum standards for sanitary landfill design, construction, and operation.

Sanitary landfills are controlled areas of land where solid wastes are deposited, compacted, and covered with compacted earth each day.

No on-site burning of wastes is allowed, and the sanitary landfills are located to provide reasonable probability of safety of the public health and the environment.

County and city governments have taken tremendous steps to address the solid waste problem. In Mississippi, 51 of the 82 counties have adequate solid waste management programs, but State Board of Health staff have in the past few months identified more than 170 illegal open dumps.

Regulations define an open dump as "any officially recognized place, land, or building which serves as a final depository for solid wastes, whether or not burned, which does not meet the minimum requirements for a sanitary landfill."

The federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 called for an inventory of all disposal sites and comparison of their characteristics with minimum standards set for sanitary landfills; those which fall below standards are classified open dumps.

Public health staff statewide have identified 173 open dumps to date. The staff notified each dump's owner or operator of the classification and of his option under state and federal law to close the site or upgrade it to meet sanitary landfill requirements.

County, district, and state-level solid waste staff will continue to work with county and city governments as well as private owners and operators to close or upgrade open dumps.

The solid waste management regulations prohibit the construction or operation of any facility for the collection, transportation, processing, or disposal of solid waste without a permit from the State Board of Health.

Regulations promulgated under the Mississippi Solid Waste Disposal Law of 1974 as amended provide legal penalty of up to $25,000 per day fines or misdemeanor conviction for not following the regulations.

9,500 in state unaware they have glaucoma

Glaucoma is a leading cause of blindness among adults in the United States. In Mississippi alone, there are an estimated 19,000 persons with glaucoma - and half don't know it.

These disturbing facts from the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness point up the importance of having a regular glaucoma check-up at least every two years after age 35 more often if it is in your family.

The Mississippi Society states that glaucoma is an insidious disease which strikes without warning often without symptoms, and always with blindness as its ultimate outcome if not detected early enough.

Glaucoma results when there is an increase in the pressure within an eye. Fluid which normally drains out slows down and begins to build within the eye. Pressure increases on small blood vessels that feed retinal nerves, and they are destroyed.

Unless this condition is discovered early and medical treatment begun, the loss of sight will progress in a tunnel-type pattern until blindness can be total.

Treatment is usually the use of special eyedrops which lower pressure. Medical supervision at specific intervals is required.

The best way to avoid glaucoma blindness, says the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness, is by having a simple, painless test called tonometry every 2 years after age 35.

Sight lost cannot be regained, but early diagnosis can halt the progress of the disease.

For a free booklet on glaucoma send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Glaucoma, Prevent Blindness, 115 Broadmoor Dr. Jackson, Ms 39206.

The Society is a non-profit, voluntary health agency supported by public contributions.

The ads for our specialty shop don't seem to be as productive as we feel they should be. Any ideas?

Dear Al: I have no way of knowing what your expectation might be, but I assume you are using some sort of systematic evaluation in making your assessment.

Most such checks involve a comparison between the increase in business, resulting from a percentage increase in promotion. But this can be a short-sighted view as most promotional efforts also produce some long term residual effect.

Furthermore just spending a certain amount on advertising is no more a guarantee of business success than spending money on pills guarantees good health. The cure must be appropriate and properly applied.

One frequent problem with specialty shops is misdirection of the ad message. Ads based on benefits to be derived by the ownership or use of the items are generally considered to be most effective.

Quite frequently, however, a purchaser may not be the ultimate user, as in the case of gifts. Here we find the benefits to the purchaser based not so much on the product features, but on the reaction of the ultimate user to the donor's selection. Product features will certainly be a factor in the acceptance, but determining the true motivation to purchase is the key to directing your ad message. In gift items the motivation to buy is to simply please the receiver. Therefore, any imagery created will be more effective if it centers around the reaction of the receiver to the giver rather than the receiver's use of the product.

Self-gratification can be a motivating factor. Many people feel on occasion they have earned or deserve a special treat for themselves. Therefore their purchases are made not so much to enjoy the benefits of the use of a product, but to "enjoy" the self-indulgence of buying it for themselves.

Again, what this means is that effective ads are directed or pitched to attract the purchaser. The most effective appeals are usually based on benefits—but here is where the misdirection enters in.

You cannot assume that all people buy for the same reason; therefore you probably cannot devise an effective ad to appeal to all prospects.

The more general the appeal, the weaker it becomes, but as the appeal becomes more specific even though to a limited audience, it also becomes quite strong.

One of the nation's top young educators will outline his prescription for improving education in America at the Annual Membership Meeting of the Mississippi Economic Council next month.

Dr. Chester Finn, Jr., a contributing author to TIME-LIFE magazines and a member of the Reagan presidency transition team on education, will address the noon luncheon of the Council's Annual Membership Meeting scheduled for Wednesday, April 22, in Jackson.

The meeting is the 32nd annual session of the Council—Mississippi's largest association of business and professional leadership.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Finn is a graduate of Harvard University and served on the Harvard faculty. He was also an education specialist in the Nixon White House.

His "prescription" for improving education in America has just been published by LIFE magazine.

In his "prescription," Finn calls for discipline in the classroom; accountability for teachers with teachers to be rewarded for excellence; testing of students for promotion and graduation; and a return to local control of public schools without federal government interference.

Finn has been named one of the 100 "top young leaders in education" in America by CHANGE magazine. He is also affiliated with the American Enterprise Institute and served as counsel for the U.S. Ambassador to India. Presently, he is serving as an education specialist for U.S. Senator Pat Pat Moynihan of New Finn will be one of the principal speakers at the day-long meeting of the Council on April 22. All events will be held at the Holiday Inn-Downtown in Jackson.

"MEC members and their business and professional associates, partners, employees, family members, and others interested in the future of Mississippi are invited to attend this meeting," said MEC Chairman Lewis F. No trouble occurred, not even a trace
As the Shuttle Columbia

Thousands were there

As the Shuttle travelled

The people were joyous
as they witnessed the sight

Housing development restrictions create California average home price of $100,000

Editor's Note: The following article entitled "The Housing Crisis: Is California setting a national trend?" is by M. Bruce Johnson, research director for the Pacific Institute for Public Policy Research in San Francisco. This article is adapted from the Pacific Institute's forthcoming book, "Resolving the Housing Crisis: Government Policy, Decontrol, and the Public Interest" and is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

In recent years we have seen the prices of single family dwellings, the inflation driven mortgage rates, and the down payments required from first time homebuyers all soar to unprecedented heights.

From 1970 to 1980, the median price of homes nationwide galloped from $23,000 to $63,000. This represents an increase of 170 percent, as opposed to an increase in the general Consumer Price Index (CPI) of about 91 percent.

While all American homes were increasing in price by 170 percent, California homes were mushrooming in value by 265 percent.

In California the median home price rose from $26,000 in 1970 to $100,000 in 1980.

The price of an average California home was only about 15 percent above the national average in 1970, while today it is more than 50 percent higher.

Many fear that the policies that have led to the housing crisis in California are now being adopted across the U.S.

A recent survey by the Los Angeles Times found that, in the Southern California area, young-married families with two wage earners are generally able to afford their home today only if their parents give them the down payment.

As recently as 1970 a clear majority - 54 percent - of Los Angeles city renters could afford to purchase a home. By 1979, the city's Community Development Department found that only 16 percent of these tenants had any real hope of ever purchasing their own home.

Incredibly, in less than one decade, we have gone from a situation where most people who rented did so because they preferred such a choice, to a situation where the vast majority of renters simply have no other feasible option.

When you add credit charges to the steep increase in the house price, you can see the whole picture.

Take the median priced home and calculate the monthly payment for a 30 year mortgage on 80 percent of the purchase price at the market rate of interest.

For the total United States, that 1970 monthly payment was $140. In 1980 it was $549. The California figure went from $165 to $844 - a "modest" increase of 411 percent!

What these price explosions mean for the average consumer is quite clear: they should have brought their house during the last decade.

To understand these remarkable phenomena, an economist looks at demand and supply. First, the demand side: persistent inflation has pushed many households into higher marginal tax brackets where the favorable tax treatment of owner occupied dwellings has increased in importance.

The deductibility of mortgage interest and property taxes together with the fact that the value of housing services does not have to be declared as income, means home ownership has been a terrific investment.

In addition, in an era when the political system has everyone's property rights "up for grabs," the owner-occupied single family dwelling is the safest property right around, given that two-thirds of American own their own home.

Thus, the demand for owner-occupied dwellings has increased.

Normally, this increase in demand would stimulate the production of housing and price increases would be modest at best. The experience in other parts of the country support this.

However, the supply side of housing in California has been regulated in such a way as to prevent that increase in the last decade.

Instead of a supply response, there has largely been a response in prices - higher prices.

Growth control measures such as restrictive zoning, water and sewer moratoria, building codes, rent controls, and condominium conversion controls have all had the effect of reducing the supply of available land and housing over what they might have been without those policies.

The ultimate result has been an increase in housing prices. The government's role in holding down the supply of housing has been documented by study after study. Recently Professor Bernard Friedman of MIT studied a sample of four proposed developments in California.

He discovered that local government growth restrictions led to the approval of only 3,445 units out of a proposed total of 25,514: a net loss of 22,069 housing units.

Lower supply means higher prices. Professors Lloyd Mercer and Douglas Morgan (University of California, Santa Barbara), in their study of Santa Barbara County housing, found that growth control regulations and restrictions accounted for more than 27 percent of the increase in real housing prices from 1972 to 1979.

Houston, Texas stands in direct contrast to this trend in California, and offers an instructive example. Houston is the fastest growing major city in America.

The one real difference is the government's land-use policy. Houston has none. And the results are simply remarkable.

With a booming population (not unrelated to the favorable regulatory climate), demand for housing has soared in Houston.

The consequence of soaring demand has been soaring supply - not soaring price.

Small price increases have signaled tremendous new investment in affordable housing.

The essence of the housing problems facing California and many other parts of the nation is that high income communities have used zoning and other growth control measures to restrict the supply of housing.

As a consequence, house prices have soared and middle and lower income families have been excluded.

There is little that can be done on the demand side that will not merely rearrange the existing stock of housing. The solution must come through supply.

Residents want more and less expensive housing. The solution is to decontrol the supply side.

CONSUMER REPORT

BILL ALLAIN,
ATTORNEY GENERAL

"HEARING AIDS"

Attorney General Bill Allain suggests that you explore various guidelines before you are panicked into buying a hearing aid. Allain states that buying a hearing aid is different from buying a car or an appliance and for one thing, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ruled that you can't even be fitted for one of these devices without a signed statement by a doctor, saying that your hearing problem is of the kind that a hearing aid could help. That's because some hearing problems can be treated medically. The only way anybody can legally sell you a hearing aid without a doctor's statement is for you to sign a legal waiver of this requirement.

The best way to shop for a hearing aid is patiently. Have your ears checked by a doctor, preferably one who specializes in diseases of the ear. If the doctor thinks that your hearing problem might be helped by a hearing aid, he will have you tested by an audiologist. An audiologist is a person specially trained to give hearing tests and determine what kind of hearing aid is best for you. Make sure the dealer knows what kind of hearing aid the audiologist recommended for you.

One of the best ways to evaluate a hearing aid is to try it out over a period of time — before you actually buy it. Many manufacturers will let you do this through trial — rental or purchase option plans, which usually last up to 30 days. Remember when purchasing a hearing aid be sure to get all the facts including its complete cost and guarantee in writing before you buy.

For additional information contact your Attorney General Bill Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P. O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi, 39205.

PRC baseball squad winless

East Central used excellent pitching and defense to sweep a doubleheader from Pearl River 6-0 and 3-2 in recent South Division contests on the Wildcat diamond.

Jim Kenney and Ron Hornesburger both went the distance in each game, combining to limit the Wildcats to just seven hits for the day. The Warriors also played error-less defense to back the superb pitching efforts.

In the first contest, Pearl River stranded runners in scoring positions in the second, third, and sixth frames to muffle any scoring opportunities for the 'Cats. East Central registered three runs in the third and two in the fourth to break open the tight contest.

John Sorrells, Lavelle Knight, and Mark Griffith had singles to lead the Wildcats at the plate. Anthony Patterson took the loss on the mound, falling to 0-2 for the season.

Clark Breland and Scott Rey held the Warriors to only four hits in the second game, but East Central pushed across two decisive runs in a crucial fifth inning for the win.

Trailing 3-0 in the bottom of the fifth, Patterson's two-out, two-run single brought the 'Cats back to within one, 3-2. But Joe Newcomer grounded out to the shortstop to end the threat.

Sorrells gave Pearl River one more chance to tie by stroking a double in the bottom of the sixth, but Hornesburger nailed down the final out of the frame with a strikeout.

Sorrells paced the Wildcats with a double and single in three trips to the plate.

The Lady Tigers and d'Iberville girls tied for the girls championship with 55 points for each team.

REFROCKING UNCLE SAM

It's getting harder every day for Uncle Sam to strut — what with his star spangled outfit getting more threadbare, now revealing a past due note for a trillion dollars stuck inside his breast pocket.

But American farmers are for refrocking the benevolent old gent who has given and given until he can't give anymore.

The American Farm Bureau Federation comprised of over three million farm families all over America has gone on record endorsing and applauding the present Administration's proposed program of federal spending and tax reductions, reduced rate of growth in the money supply, and less federal regulations — all key ingredients in the formula to set this country's economic ills straight.

We, as a nation, have made play money out of our national treasury, and here's how. Only our government, and a few counterfeiters here and there, print or otherwise create money. Yet, when government spending exceeds government income, it has become a federal habit to create new money to cover the deficit.

The Federal Reserve System was created for the specific purpose of making it possible for government to expand or contract the supply of money and credit in response to trade and business needs. This system has tolerated excessive federal spending, even with greatly increased taxation, which has created a huge and growing federal deficit now approaching one trillion dollars. The interest on this lien in Uncle Sam's pocket will cost U.S. taxpayers over 90 billion dollars this year alone.

Politically, U.S. congressmen have been reluctant to raise taxes high enough to cover the deficit gap — so, more money is printed and more credit is made available, and the situation continues to worsen.

Welfarism is at the root of the problem. The huge growth in government spending at 15 percent compares to growth in personal incomes of 12 percent — an equation that does not balance, but nevertheless has prevailed as the federal government spent beyond its means in an effort to make life supposedly better for some by redistributing wealth and income.

The farm organization feels that inflation control will require a sustained, long-term monetary policy approach that will bring the nation's supply of money and credit back in line with "appropriate national needs and goals."

Uncle Sam's modern day image has been disparaged enough both at home and abroad. Political satirists already have pointed out that the popular wartime poster image of Uncle Sam pointing and saying "I want you" now is more aptly Uncle Sam with an outstretched, cupped hand saying "A want."

Worse than imagery, however, is the threadbare aspect on many Americans victimized by inflation who have seen the value of the dollar cut in half about every six years. This deterioration has shaken the future of people on fixed incomes, made mockery of savings programs, and become traumatic for countless retired elderly citizens.

Today few young marrieds can see a way to buy a home. Capital spending is avoided. New buildings and equipment, which create new jobs, are deferred. Workers are idle. Interest rates soar far beyond the capacity of smaller and many larger businesses to make a profit.

The standard of living of most Americans has shrunk as inflation outstripped increases in earnings while the U.S. rate of productivity has declined shockingly.

Uncle Sam needs a refrocking, and U.S. farmers would like to see him earn it along with everybody else.

TIMBERLINE

By Rand Friedrich
Hancock County Forester

If you were planning to go into the nearby woods and gather firewood this summer so it will be fully cured and ready for use next fall and winter you'd be wise to make certain you have obtained written permission from the owner of those trees.

It's not only common courtesy and good sense, but the recent session of the legislature stiffened the penalties for illegally cutting, or carrying away, or otherwise fooling with trees that don't belong to you unless you have the owners consent.

The H.B. 822 amendments to Sections 95-5-1 and 95-5-3 of the Mississippi Code apply to any trees, whether freshly felled, already down on the ground or already girdled or deadened in some way.

Penalties spelled out in the law include $55 fine per tree for a number of specifically named species (all oaks, cypress, pine, poplar, walnut, cherry, pecan, hickory, chestnut, birch, ash, holly, gum, persimmon, cedar, sassafras or beech); for all other species the penalty is $35 per tree.

In addition, you'll be required to pay the owner the actual market value of the tree and possibly some added civil damages.

All the owner needs to prove is that he owns the trees and that you are responsible for their cutting, removal, etc.

The amendments apply to trees on all types of landownership including 16th Sections and other public lands.

Weather Forecast

Mid-April to Mid-May

Weather Outlook
Mississippi farmers can expect above normal temperatures and rainfall for the next 30 days, according to a National Weather Service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

This is good news for growers who have already completed a lot of planting, say agrometeorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville who prepare the forecasts. Farmers are urged to use waterconserving practices, however, because weather experts say the dry weather is still with us.

Soil temperatures were much warmer than normal the first half of April. Wetter soils are usually cooler, and temperatures cool enough to hurt cotton are still possible, say agrometeorologists.

Poultrymen should prepare for the coming heat stress season. Temperatures could be into the low 90s before May 15.

Coming rains should help wheat to fill, but some disease problems could occur. Pastures should get their best growth of the year within the next 30 days.

INSTALLING FIRST POLE—South Mississippi Power Association crews install the first pole near Hwy. 607 of a transmission line which will serve Borg-Warner Chemicals' Port Bienville Plant now under construction. The approximate 10-mile line extends from a substation just south of I-10 on Hwy. 607 southward to the plant site. Coast Electric Power Association officials say the increased power usage by Borg-Warner will help delay customer rate increases. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Cable TV reports franchise tax totals

Lamar Communications, Inc. of Jackson, this week paid the municipalities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland more than $2,728 in franchise fees for the first six months of fiscal 1981, according to company officials.

Lamar Communications operates Hancock Community Cable, Inc., headquartered on St. Joseph Street in Waveland. Neville R. (Jake) Jacob, Hancock Cable general manager, said the sums "reflect the growing nature of our concern."

"These payments are the largest to the municipalities since we connected our first customer to the system on July 4, 1979," he added.

"Since then we have paid the City of Waveland a total of $2,613 and the City of Bay St. Louis $3,968."

"The difference in the two sums reflects the larger population served in Bay St. Louis. Our percentage of connected customers to homes passed by the cable is about the same in both locations," Jacob said.

Jacob noted the company's new 'logo' is being featured on 'Easter Bunny Special Offer' advertising now being carried in The Sea Coast Echo.

"Hancock Community Cable, Inc.'s principal owner is Lamar Outdoor Advertising, Inc. of Jackson and we are managed and operated by Lamar Communications, Inc., a totally owned Lamar Outdoor subsidiary," he explained.

"To streamline the ordering of materials and minimize computer entries, particularly in the field of billing, we have switched over from our principal Hancock Community Cable, Inc. identity to Hancock Cable TV, within the Lamar corporate logo."

"Our next step, after we have used up all existing printing and changed computer programs, is to further modify our public identity to 'Lamar Cable TV,'" the cable television manager said. He said that the base local company would remain as Hancock Community Cable, Inc. whose minority ownership is held by the Colosseum Corporation, a local investment group.

Lamar Communications, Inc. also operates Lamar Cablestems, Inc., Lamar Cablestems, Inc. (Florida), and Lamar Cablepartners 1980.

The group's cable television systems operate in the Bay-Waveland area of Hancock County and in Crystal Springs and Hazelhurst, as well as in Apalachicola and Havana, Fla.

Additional systems are either under construction or planned at Mendenhall and Carrabell, Fla.

Two other franchises are under final negotiation in Florida, Jacob said.
